

REGISTER TODAY FOR THE INTRODUCTORY TRAINING FOR COLLABORATIVE FAMILY LAW IN WISCONSIN

June 13-14, 2019 | 8:30 AM – 4:30 PM

Center for Graduate Studies - Carroll University

2140 Davidson Road Waukesha, WI 53186

The Collaborative Family Law Council of Wisconsin (CFLCW) debuted its acclaimed interdisciplinary basic training “The Building Blocks of Collaborative Family Law” in 2004. Building Blocks is the initial component of the training required of Collaborative Professionals. In 2017, we added training on the emerging models of the Collaborative Practice, such as the “facilitator model.” Starting in 2018, the training followed an actual case from start to finish, and the training modified to provide a greater emphasis upon the practical application of the Collaborative Process.

With Building Blocks, you will learn

- The basic steps in a collaborative divorce
- The role of each professional team member
- The new facilitator role for team management
- Skills to effectively conduct client interviews
- Skills to avoid impasse
- Ethical considerations impacting collaborative practice
- How teamwork enhances the collaborative process

Register today online at www.cflcw.org

If you join CFLCW at the time of registration, the fee for the two-day training is only $350 and includes up to 14 CLE including one Ethics credit. Membership includes the Collaborative Academy for the following 12 months (Five CE credits) and you receive a free registration to the 2019 CFLCW Annual Meeting on November 1. (Seven CE credits) The meeting will feature a daylong session with Nina Meierding, JD, an internationally recognized expert on negotiations, mediation and collaborative law.

Current CFLCW members and collaborative practitioners are active in a number of counties and growing in several locations especially in eastern Wisconsin and the Fox Valley area. This training is an excellent opportunity for attorneys, mental health professionals and financial experts to become involved in Collaborative Practice in Wisconsin.
